If Travel Changes

1. Reconfirm the executive calendar impact.
2. Protect or move decision-critical meetings first.
3. Update the live Notion Travel Brief.
4. Update the corresponding Google Calendar event(s).
5. Send a concise Slack update with only what changed, the impact, and the next required action.
6. Preserve an updated PDF copy for offline access when appropriate.

Communication Model

NOTION | Live Travel Brief	Single mobile-friendly source for itinerary, meeting context, logistics, and current travel risks.
GOOGLE CALENDAR | Execution Layer	Flights, transfers, meetings, addresses, and timing aligned to the live itinerary.
SLACK | Immediate Change Communication	Short updates explain what changed, impact, and next action without forcing the executive to reread the full itinerary.
PDF | Offline Backup	Portable copy for limited connectivity, airplane mode, or contingency use.

AUTOMATION NOTE

With the appropriate integrations, permissions, and subscription levels, updates from the operating system can trigger downstream actions through tools such as Make or Zapier - for example, creating or updating calendar events and sending Slack notifications. The executive-facing principle remains the same: one controlled source of truth, fewer manual handoffs, and faster communication.
